From primary and secondary schools, to colleges and universities, to specialty and graduate programs, there are more than 100,000 education institutions in the United States. All of them need printed forms. The federal Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) establish the minimum requirements for school systems in maintaining, protecting, and providing access to students' school records. Part of those requirements is the need to maintain physical, printed forms. There are other forms, such as student progress reports and parent notices, that schools maintain for the benefit of students and their families, as well.

At Wise, we specialize in educational forms, including those for highly specialized applications and needs. Contact us to find out how we can help you stay ahead in this high-profit market.
